Brazos River Flood Update

Water levels are stabilized. The Brazos River at the Brazoria Reservoir has remained at 22.80 feet since 2pm on Tuesday (6/7). Oyster Creek at 10 am Wednesday (6/8) was at 17.62. At 2pm Tuesday (6/7) the creek was at 17.60 feet.

The Bastrop Bayou also appears to have stabilized and now rises and falls slightly depending on the tides. The bayou at SH288 was at 17.4 feet at 7 am this morning 6/8. This time yesterday it was at 17.60 feet. The level at the Brazos Canal was 13.73 at 7 AM this morning (6/8). It was at 13.48 at 7 AM Tuesday (6/7).

The situation at Northwood subdivision remains stable as well. The sewer system is operating properly, but we still ask residents to restrict usage until we get past the worst of this flood.

The structure at the Brazos Canal is holding as well. This structure is in front of Regal Storage on FM 2004 near CR288.

Again it appears that levels on the river, creek and bayou are stabilizing. WE are all waiting for the water to begin to recede.
